Update on Opening & More
Update on Opening

Hi friends,

First, I hope you and your loved ones are getting through these challenging times and staying healthy in all ways. We cannot wait for the day to come where we can welcome you to dine and gather at the future Blossom Market Hall- the first food hall in the western San Gabriel Valley and a thriving community hub in the San Gabriel area.

In the meantime, we have been quietly continuing with construction. We are now a couple of months behind, but regardless we are committed to completing the project and will continue to fund the project long as our contractor will continue to work and as long as we are permitted to do so.

Based on the progress with Covid-19 and feedback from all our vendors, we have decided to delay the grand opening until early 2021. Previously, we were targeting to open this summer or early fall. However, opening next year is now the best decision for everyone.

We will continue construction even though the opening has been pushed out so that it will be ready when the time comes.

Vendor Line Up & Available Stalls

Understandably, a couple of our vendors have had to drop out. However, we still have a really great line up. Here is our current line up:

Thank you to all the vendors who are committed to BMH. The food and atmosphere will be amazing at the future BMH because of you guys.

There are a couple of stalls available right now. Please spread the word or email to inquire: hello@blossommarkethall.com

San Gabriel Mission Fire

As you most likely heard, the beautiful and beloved San Gabriel Mission was sadly burned in a fire. The roof and interior were extensively burned, however, the structure remains intact and they are able to rebuild. Also, much of the historic artifacts in the mission were removed for restoration work before the fire. So those were thankfully saved.

The 1771 San Gabriel Mission is an important structure and place in the community for those in San Gabriel and beyond. It is a fundamental piece of our history and the birthplace of the Los Angeles region.

The San Gabriel Mission is only about 800 feet from Blossom Market Hall and they are our neighbors. Although BMH was thankfully not affected in any way, we understand how important the mission is to us and our community. One of the main reasons why we chose the BMH site was its proximity to the mission. We love the idea that BMH can serve visitors to the mission and vice versa.

Blossom Market Hall has donated $2,000 to help with rebuilding. If you would also like to contribute, here is a link to do so:

Even during these times, we still believe in the project, Blossom Market Hall. Everytime we visit the site and imagine what it will be someday, we still feel very excited. We believe the day will come when the vision of a community food hall showcasing the best of the San Gabriel area and its many diverse offerings will come.

Much love,
Nellie & Chris
